AMBOY WILL BE
PIPED FOR GAS
FROM OIL FIELD

City Council Granted a Franchise for Such Utility Thursday

(Telegraph Special Service)
Amboy, June 4.—The city of Amboy is to be supplied with natural gas piped from the wells southwest of the city in May township to the places of business and residences, as a result of action taken by the city council in special session last evening. E. Stevenson, who has been in Amboy for the past few years in charge of oil drilling operations in May township, submitted his franchise to the city Tuesday evening in which he made application for a permit to supply the city with natural gas. The franchise was read to the council but no definite action was taken until the special session last evening.

The city council members were favorably impressed with the possibilities of securing this gas service and in the original application, some minor changes were deemed necessary. A redraft of the application was presented at the special meeting last evening which met with the approval of the council and the city attorney was instructed to draft a franchise which will be finally acted upon at the regular meeting of the council next Tuesday evening. The council will require the service to be installed by July 1, 1927 when the franchise is granted next week and it is expected that the work of installing the pipe line will start very soon.

WRIGHTS BATTLE
FOR POSSESSION OF COUNTRY HOME

Artist's Writer-Wife Had Him Arrested This Morning

Spring Green, Wis., June 4.—(AP)—Frank Lloyd Wright returned from the east late last night to Taliesin, his country home near here, and announced that he had arrived "to help hold the fort" against his estranged wife, Miriam Noel Wright, who seeks admission. He asserted that she would not be allowed to enter.

The embattled portals twice yesterday withstood the assaults of Mrs. Wright, seeking refuge beneath the roof of the husband who failed ten days ago in an effort to divorce her. Moving to new methods of entrance into her husband's mansion, she has sought legal aid in compelling the protection of the home she left three months after her dramatic marriage to the architect. In 1923, she charged that Miss Olga Milanoff, housekeeper for Wright and a Montenegrin dancer, is in possession of the house. When Mrs. Wright went to the gates of the estate yesterday and demanded entrance, armed with a warrant for Miss Milanoff and a peace bond for her husband, the padlocked portal blocked her path. A deputy sheriff who was permitted to enter, reported that his search for the housekeeper was fruitless.

Wright was arrested today at his villa, Taliesin on the peace warrant obtained by his wife yesterday. He was released later by Justice of the Peace T. H. Arthur, Dodgeville, on advice of District Attorney N. S. Boardman of Iowa county.

Lixon Golfers Given
Beating at Morrison

Dixon golfers were deeply humiliated at the Morrison County club yesterday afternoon in the first inter-city meet of the season, when the Whiteside county golfers won easily by a score of 45 to 25. Several of the better players on the Dixon team were unable to make the trip and substitutes who had not played very many games this season were used.

Former Quartermaster of Army Died in Washington

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—Major Gen. Carl S. Frederic Humphrey, 82, retired, a former quartermaster general of the army died today. He was awarded a congressional medal of honor for gallantry in action against the Indians in Idaho. In the Spanish-American war he was chief quartermaster of the Santiago Cuba expedition.

St. Charles Boy is

Parents Who Abandoned Baby

Mrs. Julia S. Phillips, 18, and her husband, Theodore, 21, were sentenced to a year in jail at Baltimore, Md., when Mrs. Phillips confessed abandoning their baby (inset) in a sewer. Her husband was leaving Baltimore, she said, and would not take her unless she got rid of "Billy."

DISORDERS AT INAUGURAL OF
NEW PRESIDENT OF POLAND
COMMUNISTS SHOW ENMITY

Demand Release Political Prisoners and Work for All

Warsaw, Poland, June 4.—(AP)—The inauguration of Professor Ignacy Moscicki as president of Poland today was marred by a communist demonstration.

The President had just taken the oath before the national assembly in the historic castle of the Polish kings when communists shouted:

"We want the political prisoners released! Give us work for the unemployed!"

Acting President Rataj rapped for order. When the communists gave no heed, the assembly began shouting: "Long live Poland! Long live the President!" The demonstration for the president was so vigorous that the communists shouted "Long live the peasants and workers' soviet government!" were audible to only a few persons nearby.

Marshal Pilsudski, head of the military revolt which brought about the resignation of President Wojciechowski, was seated on the platform. The other members of the Bartel cabinet were ranged behind him. There was no demonstration when he entered the hall.

Dr. Moscicki, in a clear voice repeated the oath, phrase by phrase, after M. Rataj, who read from the original leather-bound constitution, signed by the members of the first republican parliament.

The new president's two grown sons were present. His wife, who is ill, their daughter and another son were not present.

RIVERS-HARBORS
BILL PASSED BY HOUSE IN FIGHT

Illinois River Project Included in Details of the Measure

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—The $56,000,000 omnibus rivers and harbors bill was passed today by the House and sent to the Senate.

The authorization for the upper Missouri river survey as it now stands in the bill, is a technical legal provision, whose practical effect will be to revive the validity of a survey of the river made by Army engineers 18 years ago.

Under the statute of limitations, the validity of such surveys lapses unless an appropriation for carrying out the project is made within two years. In the case of the upper Missouri survey, first authorized most two decades ago, no appropriation has yet been made and none will be made possible without some such provision as that carried in the present bill.

If the authorization now proposed becomes law, no new work will have to be done under it, but the old survey will again have a legal status, making an appropriation possible at any time within the next two years.

Killed Many Motions

The House first refused today, 195 to 97, to send the bill back to committee with instructions to eliminate the Illinois river and Cape Cod canal projects.

Dividing 165 to 68, the House also rejected a motion by Representative Sosnowski, republican of Michigan, to eliminate the authorization for a survey of the all-American canal project.

It likewise voted down a motion by Representative McDuffie, democrat of Alabama, to strike from the measure an authorization for survey of the Missouri river between Kansas City and Sioux City. The vote on this motion was 145 to 33.

The motion to recommit and eliminate the Illinois river and Cape Cod projects was rejected the first time without a record vote, but a roll call was demanded by Representative Mooney, democrat of Ohio. The House, on a roll call vote, then rejected the motion, 121 to 225.

Division of water from Lake Michigan formed the basis of the opposition to the Illinois project, which was led by Representatives Burton and Chalmers of Ohio; Crumpton, Mages and Sosnowski of Michigan; and Schaefer of Wisconsin. The bill was defended by Representatives Dempsey of New York, chairman of the rivers and harbors committee; Madden and W. E. Hull of Illinois, republicans; and McDuffie, democrat, Alabama.

Confusion reigned in House. Confusion, punctuated with sharp personal clashes and charges of filibuster which were not denied, prevailed throughout much of the long session which began at 11 a. m. yesterday and did not end until 1:04 o'clock this morning. Chairman Snell of the rules committee was moved to protest, at one point, that it was the wildest scene he had observed since he has been a member of the House.

Few sections were eliminated during the fight, and they were not ranked among those of major importance. Motions to eliminate the Illinois river provision and those to extend the intracoastal canal development along the Gulf of Mexico to Corpus Christi and to connect Gravesend Bay with Jamaica Bay, N. Y., were voted down 133 to 83. Subsequent efforts to kill the Illinois project brought similar results, and it was approved by a vote of 139 to 58.

Senate's Night Session

During much of the night the House was not alone in the capitol, the senate also having met to dispose of uncontested bills, ninety of which were passed before a demand for a roll call on the Pittman measure to require the Secretary of the Treasury to complete purchase of silver at $1 an ounce under terms of the war time silver act disclosed that a quarum could not be obtained, and forced adjournment.

Among the items in the rivers and harbors bill approved was a provision for a 35 foot channel, 300 feet wide, between Cairo, Ill., and the head of the passes on the Mississippi river. For maintenance of the channel, an

Widow of Former Sheriff Died in Chicago Last Eve

Dixon friends this morning received word of the death of Mrs. Angie Wahnke, widow of the late Charles Wahnke, former sheriff of Lee County, at her home in Chicago Thursday evening after a lingering illness. Funeral services will be held at the Methodist church in Franklin Grove at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon, with burial in the cemetery at that place. Mrs. Wahnke will be remembered by many Dixon people, as her home was in this city for many years, and the sympathy of friends will be tendered the bereaved son, George, who is the only surviving member of the family.

Highway Men Got $100
in Cafe in Champaign

Champaign—Two highwaymen held up Twin City Cafe No. 2 in the University district last night and obtained $100 from the cash register. A score of patrons in the place were not molested aside from being forced to stand with raised hands while the register was being rifled. The bandits escaped in an automobile with an Iowa license plate.

ARE ACCEPTED

Judge Took Hand To day Questioning Jury
Men Summoned

Chicago, June 4.—(AP)—One of the first three prospective jurors for the trial of Martin Durkin, auto bandit, today was challenged by defense counsel. He was the 54th venireman examined, of whom only two have been accepted by both sides.

Judge Harry B. Miller took a hand in questioning some of the veniremen, to learn if they had been prompted in their replies to questions of counsel or if they were anxious to avoid serving on the jury.

Yesterday the prosecutors received a threatening letter, and today defense counsel received another, intimating dire consequences if they did not hasten the trial.

AMERICAN GOLFERS BADLY BEATEN BY
BRITISHERS TODAY

Professionals Dropped Every Game to English
Players

BULLETIN

Paris, June 4.—(AP)—Miss Helen Wills, American tennis champion, who entered in the international hard court tennis championship here, became ill today and was sent to a hospital.

The California tennis star, after being admitted to the American hospital late today, underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Wentworth, Eng., June 4.—(AP)—British professional golfers won all five two-ball foursome matches today from their American opponents, taking a commanding lead in the international professional golfers' tournament which started this morning.

In order to secure the Ryder cup, which is at stake in the competition, the Americans must now win 8 of the 10 singles matches tomorrow.

Play was observed with the keenest interest by golfing experts as most of the competitors are entered in the British open championship.

Perhaps the most surprising of today's results was the victory of Abe Mitchell and George Duncan over Jim Barnes and Walter Hagen by the wide margin of 9 and 8. Both Americans visited the bunkers frequently.

In the other four matches, the British players all won by the same score—3 and 2.

TENNIS PLAYERS EVEN

Paris, June 4.—(AP)—The Americans broke about even in today's play in the international hard court tennis championships.

Howard Kinsey won a long five-set match from the young Argentine Caturusca and Miss Mary K. Browne eliminated Mlle. Deslandes De Dancoet. On the other hand, Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, who has had a hard time getting in her best condition, was defeated by Mme. Mathieu, of the better younger French players and paired with Miss Isabella Mumford, lost to Mme. Danet and Regine Vlasto in the doubles.

Helen Wills, the American champion, was indisposed and her match with Mlle. K. Bouman of Holland was postponed until tomorrow.

Suzanne Lenglen, in the upper half, continued her devastating way, eliminating Mrs. Shepherd Barron of England without the loss of a game.

THIRTY-THREE OF BUSINESS INSTITUTIONS OF CITY TO HAVE THURSDAY HOLIDAYS

Agitation for a half holiday for Dixon merchants and their employees every Thursday afternoon during July and August, as has been the custom in years past, has resulted in the decision of thirty-three business institutions of the city to close at noon each Thursday from July 8 to September 9, inclusive. Those who have agreed to the closing are:

Staples & Moyer, W. S. Filson, E. P. Myers, E. C. Kennedy Music Co., George A. Campbell, Lew Edwards, Theo. Mason, Sterling's Pharmacy, A.

Hanged in Effigy

TO PROBE GANG
WORK AT POLLS

Charge of Municipal Judge Trude Cause of Crowe's Act

Chicago, June 4.—(AP)—A special grand jury to investigate alleged frauds in the primaries of April 13 was ordered today on petition of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, 24 hours after Municipal Judge Daniel P. Trude had charged gang interference with the republican county judge nomination.

Joseph P. Savage, an assistant state's attorney, by the Cook (Chicago) county returns, defeated Judge Trude for the nomination for county judge and the latter yesterday filed a petition for a recount, alleging terrorism at the polls by members of the Crowe faction of the party.

The state's attorney acted swiftly, also causing the appointment of a special prosecutor.

The special crime jury, now completing its report, was obtained by the state's attorney, who also enlisted the aid of Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom in directing the inquiry after Crowe's political opponents called for a grand jury investigation of the machine gun assassination of Assistant State's Attorney of William McSwiggan and two other men.

NO ONE INJURED IN EXPLOSION AT MONTEVIDEO, URU.

Reason for Attempted Destruction of Place Not Cabled

Montevideo, Uruguay, June 4.—(AP)—A bomb was exploded at the door of the American legation today. Some damage was caused but no one was injured.

The outrage is attributed by the authorities to the agitation among radicals against the conviction of Sacco and Vanzetti in Massachusetts.

Examination of the legation showed that the material damage was more extensive than at first thought. The ceiling to the entrance hall, which is directly under the office of the American minister, U. Grant Smith, was demolished, the bomb apparently having been one of great power. Ten pounds of fragments were collected, including pieces of iron, lead, steel, wire and screws.

Washington, June 4.—(AP)—A report to the State Department said a bomb exploded this morning in the vestibule of the building in Montevideo, Uruguay, in which the chancery of the American Legation is located, but no one was injured.

The message, signed by U. Grant Smith, American minister, said details would be telegraphed later.

The bomb explosion today is the second that has occurred in front of an American legation in South American countries with the last few weeks. On May 12 a bomb exploded in front of the United States embassy in Buenos Aires, causing some damage to the structure, but injuring no one.

The Buenos Aires explosion, in police circles, was attributed to agitators who have been leading a movement in protest against the conviction for murder in Massachusetts of Nicolo Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

Lady Astor's Horse is Winner of English Race

Epsom, Eng., June 4.—(AP)—Lord Astor's short story, won the Oaks Stakes for three year old fillies at a mile and a half here today. The race carried 2,000 pounds sterling with extra.

Lord Astor also won third place with his Gay Bird. D. Sullivan's Resplendent was second.

Short Story, at odds of 5-1 against, won by four lengths, while two lengths separated the second and third horses. The odds against Resplendent were 100-6 and against Gay Bird 100-8.

British Prince Will Play in Tennis Meet

London, June 4.—(AP)—For the first time in the history of the Wimbledon tournament, a member of the British royal family will compete in the forthcoming lawn tennis championships.

The Duke of York, the King's second son, has entered for the men's doubles, with Wing Commander Louis Greig, his former equerry, as partner. They have played together in club games, but this is the first time the Duke has entered a top notch tournament. He is a left handed player.

Old Man Lay Nine Days
With a Fractured Hip

Bloomington, Ill., June 4.—(AP)—Thomas Lee, 68 years old is in the hospital at Lincoln with a compound fracture of one hip after lying in the open nine days after receiving the injury.

Lee received the injury when he was jolted in a box car which was bumped by an Alton switch engine. He managed to crawl to a nearby stock yard, where he lay while an old Mexican woman carried him food.

The WOMAN'S DAY

By Allene Sumner

Some Husband!

The married sisterhood of America is out hunting for one Mr. C. C. Class, a woman who disappeared from his home in Omaha, Neb., seven years ago. His wife and three children just completed a 10,000-mile walk in search for him. Other women opine that what's worth walking 10,000 miles for, must be worth being on the lookout for!

Long Skirts

It seems rather needless for the Swedish court to rule recently that skirts must fall to within six inches of the floor when worn by any woman appearing at court, since this is accomplishing the very same thing. Most of the skirts seen on Social Register brides and bridesmaids of the spring are as long as those worn by criminal magis in old-fashioned gardens when the eve was cool.

Club Note!

If your club has four dollars and four dollars only to spend, do so at once. Invest it in a new time called "Art Throughout the Ages," by Helen Gardner, and go in for a year's program of art which means something. The world's treasure trove of pottery, rugs, tapestries, frescos, sculptures, oils and bronzes is opened to you with gorgeous pictures to boot!

Prodigy Epidemic

Once upon a time a child called Daisy Ashford wrote a book which minted some trillion-million dollars for its supposed juvenile author, and straightway all the mother's darlings in the country began writing books much to the dismay of drowning publishers. Things calmed down for a while, then little bob-headed Nathalia Crane wrote her poems about the janitor's boy, much to that youngling's dismay, and Explorer Beebe took his publisher's son David Putnam on the Sargasso Sea trip, after which David wrote "David Goes Voyaging," and now the epidemic is on again! Here's warning that parents are the promoters of these child classics. Just as few children "take their pen in hand" as practice scales of own accord!

It and He Were "Full"

They tell this story about Charles Lamb, author of a coach in which Lamb was riding, "are you full inside?" Whereupon Lamb stuck his head from the carriage window and said, "I am quite full inside; that last piece of pudding at Mr. Gillman's did the business for me."

What Kind Pudding?

It must have been ginger pudding. Try it yourself and see if you blame Charlie. One and one-half cups cooked rice, 1/4 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup minced nut meats, 1/4 cup preserved ginger finely chopped, 1/2 cup marshmallows cut fine, 2 cups whipped cream. Mix rice, sugar, salt and vanilla. Add to ginger, nuts and marshmallows, fold in whipped cream, chill.

A puzzle of childhood days went, "what is black and white but red all over?" the answer, of course, being "a book." Fashion asks this year, "what is black and white and seen everywhere?" and the answer is "hats and suits and coats and dresses." This is the strongest black-and-white party for many a moon. Ensemble costumes of black coats lined with white crepe de chine, white dresses trimmed with black, are especially good.

BY CYNTHIA GREY—

An outburst of sympathy from feminine America greeted Gerald Chapman when he was sentenced to death. The execution of the Nevada murderer by lethal gas the other day brought a flood of letters of protest from well-intentioned women.

Nearly any criminal, however atrocious his crime, can depend upon the pity and championship of a certain group of emotional women, who have lost sight of the crime and its effect on society.

It is even reported that one unbal-

Breakfast—

Minted orange juice, cereal, thin cream, crisp rye toast, peanut butter, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—

Cream of asparagus soup, croutons, whole wheat bread, rhubarb conserve, rice custard pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—

Casserole of chicken, mashed potatoes, new carrots in cream, asparagus salad, cherry pudding, graham rolls, milk, coffee.

The tough ends of the asparagus are used for the luncheon soup together with the water in which the tender tips are cooked. The tips are chilled on ice until needed for dinner since they must be cooked at noon for the luncheon soup.

Rhubarb Conserve. Six cups diced rhubarb, 3 oranges, 1 lemon, 1 cup raisins, 6 cups sugar, 1 cup broken English walnut meats.

Squeeze juice from oranges and lemon. Cut rinds in very thin slices and cover with cold water. Bring to the boiling point and simmer until almost tender. Add prepared rhubarb and cook until tender. Add sugar and raisins seeded and cook until mixture thickens when a spoonful is tested on a cold saucer. Add nuts if used and cook five minutes longer. Turn into sterilized jelly glasses and cover with paraffin when cold.

This conserve is especially good in sandwiches to serve with cold boiled ham or sliced chicken.

TWO ORGANIZATIONS DO NOT AGREE—

New York, June 4—(AP)—Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, honorary president of the National League of Women Voters, caused the exclusion of the National Women's Party from the International Women Suffrage Alliance in Paris because, she says, the party is opposed to the policies of the League.

Mrs. Catt was recently denounced by Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, president of the National Women's Party and leader of its delegation to Paris for causing the exclusion.

Replying, Mrs. Catt said Mrs. Belmont's organization "is opposed in program and methods to the National Women's Party."

The two organizations have disagreed on policies, she said, since the passage of the nineteenth amendment. The National Women's Party seeks a constitutional amendment removing all special protective legislation for women, while the League seeks to remove women's civic disabilities state by state.

Farewell Reception Rev. and Mrs. White

A farewell reception was held at the Grace Evangelical Church last evening in honor of Rev. Wilson W. White and wife who are leaving today for their field of labor in Donaldson, Minn. A large number of friends gathered to extend their best wishes.

Mrs. A. W. Hartman and Mr. H. J. Hughes made some very helpful remarks, to which responses were made by Rev. and Mrs. White. A study lamp was presented to Mr. White by the members and friends of the church. Rev. F. Brandtner gave some fitting remarks concerning the work of a pastor and prayers were offered by Miss Dewey and Rev. Brandtner. The fellowship supper and program was enjoyed by all.

Pledges of spring, ranged neatly on the sill.

Springing the room with crisp, star-clustered flowers.

Lifted from amber glass, defiant, still. You hear prim clocks tick out your thwarted hours.

Only to star all day at whirling snow. Sheltered and safe and snug, I know—I know!

American Home Keynote Gathering

Antioch City, N. J., June 4—(AP)—The women of the country do not fear a dry referendum in the opinion of Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which at the biennial convention has placed three million women on record as "unequivocally supporting the 18th amendment and the Volstead act" and opposed to any modification.

"This convention will, I am confident, send the women home to work harder than ever for law enforcement," Mrs. Sherman said in enumerating the convention's achievements. "If there should be a national referendum, and the women would not fear one, the enforcement campaign would be waged by every individual club in the country."

Today, the last of the convention, is dedicated to "the American home department," the keynote of the gathering.

Zion Household Science Club

The Zion Household Science club met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. John Wells. The meeting was called to order by the president and victrola music followed. There were present eight members and twelve visitors.

The secretary's and treasurer's report was read and approved.

At this time the election of officers of the society took place resulting in the reelection of Mrs. Geo. Lair as president and Mrs. B. J. Wolf as secretary and treasurer. Mrs. Philip Lyons is the vice president.

After the business meeting the hostesses served very delicious refreshments including strawberry short cake and coffee.

Party Honored Miss Loftus

Mrs. Elizabeth Keane and Mrs. Roy Harrington entertained a number of young ladies at the latter's home Thursday evening honoring Miss Imogene Loftus, who will be the bride of Frank Keane next week. The evening was spent with cards, Mrs. William Love of Chicago winning first prize, and Mrs. William Loftus of Dixon the consolation.

Refreshments completed the enjoyment of the guests while the bride-to-be was remembered with a fine electric toaster, the pre-nuptial gift of the guests present.

Woman's Missionary Society Meeting

The meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Christian church was held at the home of Mrs. A. L. Palmer Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Cox as assisting hostess.

After the usual business, an election of officers was held as follows: Mrs. B. H. Cleaver—President. Mrs. L. L. McGinnis—Vice President. Mrs. J. E. Reagan—Secretary. Mrs. James Kindig—Treasurer. Mrs. Chas. Ruggles—Literary Secretary.

Mrs. Alfred Rice—Organist. Mrs. Cox had charge of the program. The devotional service, from the book Altar Songs, was given by Mrs. Rice. Reverend Cleaver then led in prayer.

A paper on "The Past Year's Work" was given by Mrs. Reagan.

A special number, which was greatly enjoyed, was a duet by Maurine Gibson and Margaret Cleaver. Mrs. Kindig gave a splendid report of the convention at Rock Falls, to which she was sent as a delegate May 13-14.

Rev. Cleaver gave some good points to carry out in the new year's work. He said: "We must not expect the strangers to come to us to join the society, but we must go and invite them to join." We must not be satisfied with just going along, but going ahead of last year's aims. He then called upon Mrs. Ella Rhodes, Mrs. Newcomb and Mrs. A. L. Derr to give some advice in increasing World Calls subscriptions, membership, and more interesting ways in conducting programs. After the program and during the pleasant social hour, refreshments were served.

New Plan to Fleece Railroad is Nipped

Quincy, Ill., June 4—(AP)—Harvey Anderson, who says his home is in Peoria, was shot last night as he was trying to escape from two special agents of the Santa Fe Railroad, who caught him in the Santa Fe depot at Pontiac, Illinois. He is in the Hancock county jail at Carthage and has a bad wound in the fleshy part of his leg.

Anderson is also charged with breaking into a garage at Fort Madison, Iowa and stealing an automobile, in which he made the trip to Pontiac, and which was waiting outside the station.

He shipped two suit cases to Pontiac, filled with stones. The contents of the suit cases were heavily insured, and his plan was to steal them and hold the railroad company responsible for the loss. The Santa Fe agents had been watching the station and saw Anderson enter. They surprised him as he was about to take the suit cases and he fled through the window.

Freeport Man Arrested

With Loot of Junk Yard

Bloomington, Ill., June 4—(AP)—William Meyers, 21, Bloomington and Edward Young, 28, Freeport, were arrested by City Marshal Taylor of El Paso as they were heading toward the hard road in the direction of Bloomington yesterday with a load of goods taken from the Lyons-Levin junk shop.

Chief Taylor discovered them while they were in the place and bided his time watching them load. About $200 worth of material was included in the load.

PATRIOTISM, WITHOUT WAR.

A Chicago educator recently urged that school history text books place less stress on wars and military achievements in our past and more on the records of peaceful years.

He was promptly denounced by all the super-patriots, who are so vocal between wars. The proposition was un-American, it was said, and would tend to diminish the patriotism of our young.

That's probably very true if you think of patriotism solely as a virtue that comes into play when the band plays the Star Spangled Banner or the troops swing past on their way to fight.

But there is a better conception of patriotism; one that sees it as a deep, abiding love for one's country, a full acquaintance with the heroic deeds of its founders and an abiding desire to make it better and stronger in whatever way may be possible.

And the Chicago educator's plan probably would help such an idea, instead of harming it.

It is good for us to remember the brave things done by Americans in time of war; the gallant dash of Mad Anthony Wayne and his men, the heroic defense of Bunker Hill, the charge up the slopes of Lookout Mountain, the steady nerve of the sailors at Manila Bay and the cold bravery of the men at Chateau Thierry. But these are not the only things in our history that can inspire a child with pride in his citizenship; not at all.

For the whole American story is like a mighty, romantic epic, conceived by a dreamer of golden dreams and written in words to stir the blood of men forever.

The story of the exploration and pioneering of the undiscovered west in the days between the close of the Revolution and the Spanish War reads like a novel. Daniel Boone, the man who considered himself "an instrument ordained by God to settle the wilderness," is a figure as romantic and admirable as any general that ever lived. Lewis and Clark, blazing the way to the west coast, are men for any nation to tell of with pride. The great rush of '49 makes one proud to be an American. The sufferings and triumphs of the covered wagon days are things to thrill us with the grandeur of our heritage.

Let the school child but once get a clear picture of the growth of this nation from its infancy to full manhood; let him see it, not as a succession of dreary intervals between exciting wars, but as a glorious pageant of heroic figures moving in darkness or half-light to establish ideals that they themselves hardly understand but that they never doubted were there; let him see that the bravery of the pioneer on the Illinois prairie or the California upland is just as praiseworthy as that of the soldier at Shiloh or San Juan Hill; let him understand that what America is today is the net result of those brave years of toil and hardship and daring—and you never need worry about his patriotism.

Patriotism is a strange and beautiful thing. Let our history books teach it, by all means; but be sure that the pupil gets patriotism in all its full glory and strength.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Ransom

WHAT THE TWINS SAW IN SHUTEYE TOWN

But strange to say, Mister Geewillkins turned slowly into a great green lobster.

The Twins looked at all the queer people in Shuteye Town, going up and down and in and out, and here and yonder, willy nilly, the queerest way ever. They whisked by under their very noses or walked between them, or darted out unexpectedly from nowhere, disappearing just as suddenly into nothing.

The most amazing part of it all, however, was that nobody made a sound. With so much bustle and bustle and hurrying and pushing and shoving, they would have expected to hear a great deal of noise. The Twins must have showed how very odd they thought it was, for all at once a tall, thin person with long arms like toll-gates suddenly stretched out one of his arms in front of them and they had to stop.

"My name is Geewillkins," said he in a solemn voice. "Why are you so surprised?"

"It's so very quiet," said Nick. "Nobody seems to make a sound. Do they all wear overcoats?"

"No," said Geewillkins. "But our streets are made of rubber. Grade A Number One rubber that never wears out."

"Can't you ever stamp or make noise?" asked Nancy. "What do you do when you're cross?"

"Cross!" exclaimed Geewillkins. "Cross! What does that mean? Is it anything like whooping cough? As for whooping cough we have a wonderful invention. Silencers! You can't hear a thing."

"Say, Mister," said Nick suddenly. "We came to this place to look for a couple of friends, so we must be going. I guess. Thank you for telling us so much about everything."

But strange to say, Mister Geewillkins turned slowly into a great green lobster with enormous whiskers and great green claws like nutcrackers. One of these nutcracker claws he snapped rudely before

Nick's nose looking as though he should like to say something rude also.

But he backed hurriedly away without any further remark, and Nancy said indignantly, "I know why he did that. He didn't think his thumb would make enough noise if he snapped it, so he turned into a lobster just so he could have those horrible claws to snap."

"I shouldn't wonder," said Nick. "But, oh, Nancy, look at all those queer people."

The Twins stood and watched the people of Shuteye Town go sliding by in their queer noiseless way.

First a lady as wide as a mattress and no higher than a shoe-scraper passed, leading a dog as long as a clothes-line and as thin as a clothes-pole.

Next came a man as high as a church steeple and so narrow he could have walked through a door crack. Without a word the man jumped on a six-legged horse which promptly leaped up on a house, and went down the chimney.

The third person was no other than an enormous egg, who seemed to be able to bend quite easily in the middle, for he bowed this way and that to all his friends as he passed constantly taking pinches of snuff and sneezing without any noise.

The fourth person stopped in front of the Twins and introduced himself. "I'm Upsidaisy," said he. "I'm first cousin to the Lowly Daisy, but I refused to be so humble and changed my name. Now you know why I wear a high silk hat, a pair of glasses on a string, and spats. Good-bye!" And away he went.

"Say, Nick," whispered Nancy. "I feel as though I was asleep."

"So do I," nodded Nick. "But I'm sure we're not."

Her Own Way

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

A MYSTERY

There had been a queer atmosphere in the store the whole afternoon. I knew that gossip had been stirring about, but no one said anything to me.

About four o'clock I saw Mr. Robinson strolling complacently down the aisle, and my blood boiled as I thought of poor Miss Cleaver as I had found her in the rest room, her face covered with a cold clammy sweat. She wasn't a pretty creature. He probably would have thought she was not. He was looking for something fresher and more beautiful.

Evidently this man didn't know me. I was the girl who had seen Miss Cleaver, in her agony, for he said to be with an unctuous smile.

"I am afraid, Miss Dean, that you have not been under the discipline of the workaday world long enough to know that all the rules of the store must be obeyed. I happened to observe that you were away at lunch for almost two hours. I am going to be lenient with you this time, however, because I think you didn't know."

"I returned in time, Mr. Robinson. I was only gone an hour. But when I went into the woman's room to hang up my coat I found Miss Cleaver very ill. I was afraid she was dying, and I stayed to help. Was that against the rules of the store?"

"If it did my heart good to see that man crumple."

He grew pale and leaned over the counter toward me.

"Don't, please don't tell this to anyone. It would hurt the business of the store if anyone should hear the story. There would be all sorts of gossip going about. I am afraid that someone would even say that she had tried to poison herself."

"Well, didn't she?" I asked tersely.

"Of course not, of course not," answered Robinson quickly. "Doctor Flint told me that he thought it was a kind of epileptic attack. He has no doubt that she will not recover."

"I am glad you told me that, Mr. Robinson, for I thought it was poison she had taken. You see, I saw her and I picked up a bottle on the floor with this label on it."

Before he could recover from his astonishment I thrust the bottle with the red skull and cross bones on it into his hands.

CONQUER CONSTIPATION EASILY

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN relieves constipation because it is 100% BRAN

Mr. McEnery tried part-bran substitutes—but only ALL-BRAN brought complete relief. Here's what he says:

"For fifteen years I was constantly bothered with constipation. About two years ago I tried out mixed bran and corn flakes but did not get much relief. Some thirteen months ago, I began using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. From the first week to this good day, I have never had to take a dose of any laxative medicine of any description."

JAMES D. MCENERY, R. F. D. No. 4, Alto, Texas.

Constipation is the enemy of health. The cause of more than forty diseases. Don't let this insidious trouble send its poisons through your body. Pimples, spots before the eyes, indigestion and headaches—are warning signs.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation or your money is refunded. Delicious with milk, fruit or with other cereals. Fine in cooking.

Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek, Michigan. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere.

THE VERY IDEA

FACIAL EXPRESSION

Consider your face, and the things folk can trace through expression you show day by day. Let's all turn thumbs down on the ones who just frown. No sense in its bein' that way.

Why not realize that a couple of eyes, and a mouth can be used to spread cheer? By hook, or by crook, you can put on the look that will make people glad you are here.

A scowl's out of joint, and by straining a point, any person can switch to a grin. If you're not of that sort, aw, come on, be a sport. Right now's a good time to begin.

Let eyes twinkle bright. There you are, now—that's right. Say, isn't it easy to do? The fellow while while it the man who can smile, and let cheerful sunshine seep through.

Judging from static, radio music is one of the things that DOESN'T come out of a clear sky.

"Stuffy how people will kick over finding moths in a coat they only paid five dollars for. What do they expect, butterflies?"

There is hot and cold water in most homes. Wives keep their husbands in one, and throw the other on most of their plans.

Church Notes

Good Thoughts for Good People

Arise, shine for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. For, behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people; but the Lord shall arise upon thee, and his glory shall be seen upon thee. And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising.

Isaiah.

Why should we, in the world's riper years, neglect God's ancient sanctuaries, and adore only among the crowd, and under roofs, that our trail hands have raised?

Bryant.

May every morning seem to say: There's something happy on the way God sends his love to you.

Henry Van Dyke

Then, brother man, fold to thy heart thy brother's
For where love dwells, the peace of God is there.

To worship rightly is to love each other;
Each smile a hymn, each kindly deed a prayer.

Whittier

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.

Christ Jesus.

The failure of Christianity to spread the whole world and accomplish its full mission, the regeneration of mankind, might well be charged to lack of more complete proof of the truth of its teachings. Mankind is weary of words; it demands deeds, works accomplished, as proof of the genuineness of the message.

A Wonderful Church and No Congregation

A magnificent $300,000 church is just being finished at Leroy, Ill., which will have no congregation at all when its doors are thrown open. One J. T. Crumbaugh, rich land owner, who died in 1905, left a $300,000 tract of land to build and support a Spiritualist church, and his will was recently sustained by the supreme court after extended litigation. There is not a Spiritualist within miles of the church now, but the edifice has been built in accordance with the will.

New York—They rang down the curtain the other night on the Academy of Music.

To the younger generation it's just another old building getting out of the way to prepare for a new skyscraper. To the white haired generation it's the passing of an aristocratic old friend, landmark of tradition and culture. And, irony of ironies, it makes way for a gas company office.

Mme. Alda sang "Home, Sweet Home" at a farewell. And there was much nodding of heads and here and there a handkerchief brushed hastily against a face. Just yesterday it seemed to the grey-haired Patti was singing the heart-song of America and carrying herself to triumph.

In the audience were many who boasted regular patronage when Patti sang.

When the song ended eyes were drawn to a box where sat a very old lady, whose aged eyes contained only embers of the divine fire that once had burned. It was Emma Thursby, whose name was writ large in the world of song "When Patti was a girl."

She is now 85, is this diva of yesterday. For 20 years she has been prisoner to her wheel chair. But she could not miss the farewell of the old house.

And in the audience I saw John Pfeiffer, who now is aged attendant in a magistrate's court. But then—he was a symphonist, playing for the artists. And nearly sat one who had been belle of the opening ball. Everywhere were the "best people" of the late seventies and early eighties.

As the years have passed the East Side has crept in and captured the neighborhood of the Academy of Music.

Year by year this fine lady of yesterday became a little bit more run down at the heels. But one or two of the surrounding landmarks have refused to give way. Nearby is a cafe that heard the clinking glasses and the toasts of all the famed ones of the Academy. Its huge roomways and

GRADUATE FROM NAVAL ACADEMY REFUSES OATH

Filled Up On Life of A Sailor He Tells Commandant

Annapolis, Md., June 4—(AP)—As a result of his refusal to take the oath of allegiance to the United States and accept an ensign's commission, Earl B. Zirkle, graduated yesterday from the naval academy, today was aboard the battleship New York, still a midshipman, and under orders to participate in the annual cruise of the lower classes.

Zirkle's refusal of his commission, an act unprecedented in the naval academy's history, was due, he said, to an increasing distaste for naval life. Three times during the last few months he had tendered his resignation from the academy, but all were refused. Zirkle next declined to accept his diploma, but an order from academy officials forced him to appear at the exercises. He then slipped from the line of march as the class filed to the commandant's office to take the oath and receive their commissions.

When finally located and brought before the officer, Zirkle announced that he would not take the oath. Academy officials immediately referred the case to Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, who had addressed the graduating class and awarded diplomas. The secretary ordered the Kansas youth assigned to the New York which will sail from Annapolis today. This action, considered punitive, is not, however, unusual when a graduate has failed to meet some requirement.

PIRATES GAINING ON REDS; SLIPPED INTO SECOND PLACE

Cubs Dropped Hard Battle to Pittsburgh Yesterday

Duplicating the smashing drive of 1925 which, lifted them from pit to pinnacle, the Pittsburgh Pirates once more have brought off a mighty push from an eighth place getaway to pound loudly at the portals of National League leadership.

In second place after a sensational spurt, which yesterday dislodged the Chicago Cubs, McKeechie's cohorts today stood only three full games behind the leading Cincinnati Reds. The climb thus has matched, almost to a day, their pace of a year ago, since it was in the first week of June, 1925, that the Corsairs landed in the contending position. They remained there until the first week of July, then leaped out in front to show the way for the remainder of the season, except for one week in August.

Braves Beat Reds
While Pitcher Yde was checking the Windy City bid yesterday, 3-2, the pace makers ran into a rioting Hub bruised Brooklyn on Wednesday. Red-lead forces, playing the first game of an eastern invasion, fared no better than the Robins, breaking under a storm of base hits which extended Boston's run total to thirty six for three games.

Wally Pipp replied to the assault with a counter attack of four hits, but team figures at the finish showed an overwhelming vote in favor of the tail enders, 12 to 5.

The New York Giants restored their percentage mark to .500 by another decisive triumph over the Phillies at 16 to 5, their fourth win in the series of five games. The result gave the standing another shakeup, pushing McGraw's team past the Cardinals to tie Brooklyn for fourth place and placing the seventh place Quakers on the brink of the cellar.

Yankees Won Again
The Yankees finished their eastern campaign with a parting cuff at the Red Sox, 8-5, extending their advantage over the second place Athletics to seven and one half games. Two Ruthian drives into the right field stand, the Babe's seventeenth and eighteenth, accounted for five of the Yankee runs. The Sox could gather only three safe blows off the delivery of Myles Thomas.

The Cleveland Indians dropped below .500 for the first time this season, as the result of a belated attack by Detroit pinch hitters. Safe blows by Blue and Manush broke up the game in the eighth and gave Cobb's team a three to two decision over Levens had allowed only two hits in the first seven innings.

Sidelights

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Andy Cohen, Pacific Coast League shortstop, who went to the Giants in a deal involving $20,000 cash and the turning over to Waco of Shortstop Novaka, made his first appearance as a Giant against the Phillies when he replaced Frankie Frisch at second base. Cohen scored a run, made one putout and committed one error.

"Pep" Young of the Giants, cracked our four hits, one of which was a double. He also counted three times in the slaughter of the Phillies.

Should "Butch" Henline, Phillies catcher, hold his batting stride, it soon will carry him up among the leading hitters of the league. "Butch" collected four blows in five times at bat against the offerings of Jack Scott of the Giants.

Walter Pipp, former Yankee, combined four hits off Genewich of the Braves, one being a triple.

Emil Yde, the Freeport, Ill., twirler, knocked the Pirates into second place when his double in the ninth inning sent the deciding run across the plate.

Jimmy Cooney, former Cardinals infielder, out of the Cubs lineup for sometime because of a broken toe, resumed his position at short against the Pirates and started two double plays against the world's champions.

Ten Year Old Horse Wins for His Owner, 101

Aurora, Ill., June 4.—(AP)—A hundred year old turf man and his ten year old horse are the heroes of every stable boy at Exposition Park today.

For Tom Cheek, who will be 101 on June 25, put a saddle on Red, his aged sprinter, in yesterday's feature race, led him to the track, and a minute later saw him romp in two lengths ahead of the field, winning an $800 purse.

Cheek, a West Virginian, acknowledged the crowd's ovation by doffing his hat and waving his hickory cane. He has been a stable boy, jockey, trainer and horse owner for ninety years.

IVANHOE—

THE STORY THUS FAR—The scene is the England of Richard I. A party of knights, en route to a tournament, visits Cedric the Saxon, their leader, Brian the Templar, incurring Cedric's wrath by his admiration of Cedric's daughter, Rowena. One of the party, disguised as a palmer, or wandering friar, leaves the castle, rents armor and horse from a Jew and wins the tournament, overthrowing the famous knight, Bois-Guilbert. He crowns Rowena queen of love and beauty and sends Gurth, his squire, to pay the Jew for the armor. Gurth is held up by Robin Hood's men, who release him when they learn the palmer employs him. The palmer wins the final event of the tournament, aided by a strange knight

AS IF IN ANSWER TO CEDRIC'S WORDS, THE DOOR FLEW OPEN AND ATHELSTANE, ARRAYED IN GARMENTS OF THE GRAVE, STOOD BEFORE THEM LIKE AN APPARITION. AND THEN TO THE ASTONISHED ASSEMBLY HE TOLD A STRANGE TALE OF HAVING BEEN STUNNED BY THE TEMPLAR'S SWORD BLOW, AND WAKING UP TO FIND HIMSELF IN A TOMB.

HERE, HE SAID, HE WAS KEPT PRISONER BY VILLAINOUS MONKS, WHO STOOD TO PROFIT BY HIS DEATH. ONLY THE DRUNKENNESS OF HIS JAILER, HE SAID, ENABLED HIM TO ESCAPE. BUT THREE DAYS ON BREAD AND WATER, HE TOLD THEM, HAD MADE HIM SEE THINGS DIFFERENTLY. HE PLEDGED HIS ALLEGIANCE TO KING RICHARD, FOR ONE THING.

Sir Walter Scott's Classic in Pictorial Form

A strange knight in black armor, who helped him win the passage at arms, wanders through the forest and sups with a Friar Tuck, a Robin Hood's band, in a lonely hut. This knight is really King Richard, disguised while he marshals his forces against his usurping brother, Prince John, who thinks him in the Holy Land. As the two sit in the hut they are joined by Robin Hood in disguise, Meanwhile Bois-Guilbert and De Bracy, with other knights, capture Cedric, Rowena, Isaac, a Jewish money changer, and his daughter, Rebecca. Bois-Guilbert threatens to kill the prisoners and the Black Knight arrives to besiege the castle. The loan from Cedric, had disappears. De Bracy tells Prince John that

WHEN HE TOOK HOLD OF ROWENA'S HAND TO PLACE IT IN THAT OF IVANHOE, BUT IT WAS DISCOVERED HE HAD DISAPPEARED, HAVING LEFT IN A HURRY AT THE APPEARANCE OF A JEW WHO HAD SOUGHT HIM OUT. ATHELSTANE THEN TURNED TOWARD RICHARD, BUT HE, TOO, HAD GONE AFTER IVANHOE, TAKING THE JEW WITH HIM AT BREAKNECK PACE.

WE MOVE NOW TO TEMPLESTOWE WHERE REBECCA IS BOUND IN A CHAIR WITH FAGGOTS PILED ROUND HER. BRIAN DE BOIS-GUILBERT IS THERE, PREPARED TO MEET HER CHAMPION, BUT TO DATE NONE HAS APPEARED. IT WAS THE BELIEF OF THE CROWD THAT NO ONE WOULD APPEAR. SUDDENLY A KNIGHT WAS SEEN ADVANCING ALONG THE PLAIN. (To Be Continued)

Third Large Class of Woodmen Adopted

Union hall was filled to overflowing last evening, the occasion being the adoption of a large class of candidates into the camp of the Modern Woodmen. The class was known as the Benjamin F. Ryan class, and was in honor of the Chief Forester for his untiring efforts in the Woodman lodge. The meeting was preceded by a parade in the down town section, led by the Woodmen Drum Corps, and consisted of the Drill Teams from Franklin Grove and Dixon, the class of candidates and a large number of members. During the meeting talks were made by State Deputy George Hatzendubler and other members prominent in Woodcraft in Illinois. Members from surrounding camps were present to enjoy the meeting. This meeting is the third large class adoption held by this camp, the other two being held in honor of former Clerk F. D. Palmer and Escort E. Horner. After the meeting refreshments were served to the large crowd. Polo is played on more than 600 fields throughout the United States.

M. W. A. and R. N. A. to Hold Memorial

The Joint Modern Woodmen and Royal Neighbor Memorial will be held Sunday afternoon, as is their annual custom. The Royal Neighbors will hold their services in Union Hall at 1 o'clock and all officers and members are urged to be present promptly. Officers are requested to wear white. Following the Royal Neighbor service the Woodmen will hold their services. Should the weather be inclement the services will be held in Union Hall, otherwise they will be held in Oakwood Cemetery. After the exercises all graves of Modern Woodmen and Royal Neighbors will be decorated. The address of the afternoon will be delivered by Rev. Walter Marshall, pastor of the Baptist church.

MORE EQUIPMENT FOR CAMP NEEDS. IS BEING SOUGHT

Extra Tents and Cots Being Sought for Boys on Their Outing

The Y. M. C. A. Yomechas has gone far beyond the expectations of the committee, who had made preparations for 50. More than 65 boys have now signed up for camp. The camp committee is putting forth every effort to accommodate all of the Dixon boys who wish to attend and to do this they have to secure extra tents and a few extra cots, but they are still short ten canvas cots. The Association is making this appeal to the citizens interested in the camp and are asking for the loan of ten cots. They will be given the best of care and will be returned on Friday, June 18th. If you, Mr. Reader, have a cot, please phone Mr. Hunt at the Y, M. C. A., 1039.

Many parents have made inquiry regarding swimming. Every possible precaution is taken and life guards will always be on duty during swimming periods. The Tribes of Yomechas have some well established customs and but few rules. "The Tribes live and work and play 'each for all and all for each' rule of living. The boys are put on their honor, making discipline the best. They take turns doing general camp and K. P. duties. The three following rules have been formulated, and violations of any of them means dismissal from camp without refund of camp fee.

1. No firearms or air rifles are allowed in camp.
2. The use of tobacco is absolutely prohibited.
3. No one will enter the water for swimming except in the presence of leaders, and only then at the regular periods designated.

A special treat is in store for the boys going to camp a treat that will surprise every member of the Yomechas Tribe and which will be made known in this column tomorrow.

Senneff Retires From Boys' Band Until Next Fall

The Boys' Band at the regular practice Wednesday evening, took considerable drill in marching so that it will be better prepared for the engagements they have to play during this summer.

This was the last practice under the leader, Earl Senneff, for the summer meetings Joe Glavin has been secured until September 1st. Mr. Senneff's many duties prevent his leading the band regularly during the summer, although he will play with the band at most of their engagements. The boys all regret seeing Mr. Senneff leave, even for this short time, but are glad that he will retain his interest in helping the band so far as his time will permit. The boys are also glad that Mr. Glavin is taking over the band leadership, for they have learned to know him from their many practices with him.

At the present time, there are 43 members in the band and there is a vacancy for six or eight clarinets and a few mellophones. If there is any boy wishing to get into the band, and plays any of these instruments, he will do well to see Mr. Senneff as soon as possible.

OBITUARY

JOHN T. GANTZ

John T. Gantz was born in Washington county, Maryland, February 23, 1840 and came to Ogle county when he was in his twenty-first year. His marriage to Mary Wadsworth of Grand Detour occurred December 31, 1868, only two years before at the call of Abraham Lincoln, he enlisted in Company F, 34th regiment of Illinois Infantry, the date of his enrollment being August 30, 1861. He served with distinctive bravery and was terribly wounded during the battle of Stone River. Wounded at surprise, in the opening of the engagement, for two days he lay uncared for beneath a heap of dead, the effect of the wound causing permanent lameness and accompanying disability during the remainder of his life.

Mr. Gantz was a man of the highest character, adhering with true fidelity and purpose to the ideals that inspired him in the prime of young manhood to offer himself in order that the manifest destiny of the Republic might not suffer dissolution. He stood unreservedly for the exercise of high principles in private and in public life and was fearless in pronouncing and in demonstrating the elements sustained by him. He gave worthy official service as treasurer of Ogle county and later as Postmaster of Oregon. Integrity, stability and moral courage were attributes that invariably characterized the course of John T. Gantz and his influence in public life was accordingly and fondly recognized. At periods of his active life he was successfully identified with various mercantile and industrial enterprises in Oregon.

Throughout the mature years of his life, Mr. Gantz was conscientiously identified with and active in the interest of the Grand Army. He served repeated terms as commander of the local post and accorded much time and effort in forwarding the work of the veterans' organization.

To Mr. and Mrs. Gantz were born two daughters, Grace, wife of Lawrence Fischer and Miss Mary Gantz and one son, Frank M. Gantz, all of whom survive. The wife and mother having passed from this life, June 20, 1923. One sister, Mrs. Louisa Shaw of Polo, also survives his passing.

Funeral services were held at his home in Oregon Wednesday afternoon, Rev. A. R. Bickelbach officiating and with the Dixon Post No. 294 G. A. R. having charge of the services at the grave in Oregon.

Moline Woman Sued for Alienation by Indianan

Peoria, Ill., June 3.—(AP)—An alienation suit for $25,000 was filed against Mrs. Grace Peera of Moline today by Mrs. Fanny Peera of Indianapolis, who alleges that she has been deprived of the love and affection of her former husband, Absolom Peera, a Persian rug salesman. In the bill it is charged that the second Mrs. Peera conspired to wean the affections of the husband away from his first wife. As a result Peera procured a divorce in Indianapolis less than a year ago, being the plaintiff in the action charging his wife with cruelty, the bill narrates. The second Mrs. Peera is understood to be wealthy and prominent in Moline society.

POLICE WITHOUT CLUE IN SEARCH FOR EVANGELIST

Mother of Missing Los Angeles Woman Sure She Drowned

Los Angeles, June 4.—(AP)—Police investigating the disappearance of Almee Semple McPherson, missing evangelist, started today without a single "hot" clew having developed over night.

A search of Bouquet Canyon, yesterday, in response to a scrawled note calling for help proved fruitless. The claim of R. A. McKinley, a blind Long Beach lawyer, that he represented two men who said that they could deliver the missing pastor for the $25,000 reward recently offered by Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, the evangelist's mother, also is all but eliminated.

Mrs. Kennedy, who believes her daughter drowned while surf bathing at Ocean Park, May 18, says that although she has abandoned all hope of recovering the body, the search will be continued.

Mail Order Booze Firm Charged by Government

Chicago, June 3.—(AP)—A year and a half search for the western sales and credit manager of a mail order liquor syndicate which catered to wealthy brokers and business men throughout the United States has ended with the arrest here of Ross H. Geeting, according to the federal agents who took Geeting in custody. He is held under $10,000 bond.

The main office of the organization was in New York and it dealt in fine liquors and only with persons of excellent financial references, federal men revealed. The business was so well organized, it is charged, that even solicitors received their commissions regularly without knowing for whom they were selling. After a year of effort, federal agents arranged a decoy shipment to Omaha and uncovered their first clues in tracing down the violators.

BROKEN HEARTS of HOLLYWOOD

BY EDWARD CLARK

Copyrighted by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD" with Louise Dresser is a Warner pictorialization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Betsy Terwilliger, a beautiful girl, and Hal Channing, a handsome young man, are mutually attracted en route to Hollywood as prize winners of newspaper contests, for movie tryouts. Arriving in Hollywood they take rooms in the same boarding house—a place frequented by movie actors, who find Betsy's face strangely familiar. Marshall, reputed to be responsible for many of the "broken hearts of Hollywood," takes an interest in Betsy. The next morning they report at the studio.

CHAPTER V.
What after the soaring thrill of the extravagant (in their eyes!) reception accorded them by the presence of a real chauffeur and a real limousine at the station to meet them upon their arrival, Betsy and Hal naturally expected that they would be received with open arms and not a little fuss at the Amalgamated Studio. It was something of a puzzle to them, therefore, when they had reported bright and early that next morning, to have the Casting Director, Cameron, accept their credentials and pictures without a word or the hint of a smile of welcome.

Suddenly both Betsy and Hal felt ill at ease, and exchanged nervous glances.

Cameron, with the eternal frowning preoccupation of an over-busy man, preoccupied from his cluttered desk and after a brief, keen appraisal of each—with his rapier eyes the only features of his expressionless face showing the slightest trace of animation, and that cryptic—he said tersely:

"How do you do. Please wait here." Then he walked quickly from the railed off lobby space that served him for an office, and disappeared.

"How do you do. Please wait here."

appeared into the sacrosanct inner bowels of the Executive Building.

Betsy and Hal, left to their own devices, began to take timid note of their surroundings. The Amalgamated was not one of the largest or showiest studios on the Coast, and a good deal of its layout was along old-fashioned lines. The casting office was a railed off space in a corner of a large, tiled lobby, which was filled with benches for the accommodation of extras waiting to be interviewed or cast or sent inside for assignment. A swinging door—portal of many hopes and more tears—opened out into the Studio Yard, which was enclosed in the huge, drab, cement quadrangle formed by the Studio buildings, which included offices, glassed studios, and laboratory. In this yard, as it was known, were several outdoor stages. Adjacent lots provided more outside sets; which here, in California, unlike the case with Eastern studios, outnumbered the indoor, or glass roof, stages.

All this, of course, Betsy and Hal had still to learn; they knew only that they were standing awkwardly inside a round brass railing, at the side of a large room full of a milling crowd of people, each and every one of whom seemed to have a curious strained, pleading expression superimposed upon a background air of hopelessness. To Betsy and Hal that swinging door was still the glided gate to fairyland; to most of the others present it was the remote hope of a coveted day's work—the price of a few square meals.

"I feel so uncomfortable the way all these people are staring at us," Betsy whispered to Hal; "and the funny way they're staring!"
"I feel kinda creepy myself. They look as though they'd like to pounce on us."

"Oh, Hal, some of those poor old women look pinched and—and hungry. Those girls are so shabby. Are they ALL looking for work? I wonder who they are?"

"Extras, I suppose. Like Mr. Hammins told us about. But don't you start worrying about them, now. I guess we young folks who get a tryout for bigger parts have to expect to be stared at."

Thus exotic are the thoughts of youth, which cannot see the forest of disillusionment for the trees of hope!

Morning is the time of ambition's highest tide; so, despite the cold water dashed on their glowing expectancy by the cynical actors at the supper table the night before, both Betsy and Hal had arisen betimes and dressed carefully, with fingers that shook.

When they had met at breakfast, their trip-found friendliness had returned in the full vigor of affectionate young hearts, sweeping away the trivial reserve that had threatened to grow up the evening before because of Betsy's favorable reaction to the attentiveness of Marshall.

But Marshall had not interrupted his beauty sleep in time to put in an appearance at the breakfast table before they left; though Betsy had rather hoped that he would, and that he might offer to go with them to the Studios, for she was sure that the intervention of so influential a man as he claimed to be would help smooth their novitiate way.

There had been, then, no oily tongue and dark earnestness to fascinate the naive confidence of Betsy this morning, or to ruffle Hal. Together, on the train, these two had shared the thrill of great expectations; together, on the bus this morning en route to their vital destiny, they had shared the deeper excitement of imminent greater fulfillment.

Hammins, who explained that he was engaged for a small part in one of the features now being shot at the Amalgamated Studios, had proffered his friendly guidance in showing them the way to the Studios—right up, in fact, to the very desk of the man to whom their letters of instruction directed them to report, Stewart Cameron. Then Hammins had gone off to dress for his day's work, leaving Betsy and Hal to their first meeting with Cameron, which has already been described.

Now, while they awaited on the figurative pins and needles for the return of the casting director, something of the expectancy that is the keynote of a studio lobby, that quiver on the general air of resigned depression like an overtone of eternal springing hope, caught hold in their consciousness. They began to experience twinges of that flavor of gambling uncertainty which gets into the blood of movie workers and makes of the moving picture industry a "game." Instead of a business—a game of incessant chance that holds its victims with deadly hypnotism akin to Monte Carlo's spinning wheels and "little white balls."

"I hope we get good parts," breathed Betsy ecstatically to Hal, forgetting her apprehensions for a moment.

But a sudden restlessness and forward stir amongst the extras, preening the return of Cameron, broke into the moods of Betsy and Hal with a chill appearance of begging that again flattened their confidence.

In returning toward his desk from the door to the inner offices, Cameron's way led him along a section of the brass railing. Toward this a score or more of the neediest looking actors surged, like mendicants, with hands outstretched to clutch at Cameron's and gain his passing attention.

What followed, Betsy and Hal watched and heard with rather sickened faculties. Each man or woman had a particular claim on Cameron's attention to voice; each a particular hard luck story. Cameron, who was a soft-hearted man beneath the absolutely necessary armor of his adamant bearing, was hailed momentarily by each clutching hand, each bitter plea. And while disengaging each restraining hand gently yet firmly, he made a low-toned but decisive refusal to each plea. Finally—swiftly—he reached the end of the line and came back to face Betsy and Hal. The rejected claimants of his favor drifted sadly away from the railing, the less desperate ones remaining restlessly in place, looking sullenly toward Betsy and Hal. Cameron surveyed the two with eyes that were neither friendly nor unfriendly, but merely professionally detached.

"Hum!" he said presently. Then, to Betsy alone, with a faint show of interest, he too, made the observation that had come to puzzle both Betsy and Hal so much since their advent to Hollywood.

"You remind me of someone, Miss Terwilliger. Someone who used to be in pictures. I think. Can't remember who, though. Oh, well—"

Coroner Cannot Order Body to County Seat

Springfield, Ill., June 3—(AP)—The ordering of a body to be brought from a distant part of the county to the county seat for examination in order to save the county coroner considerable time and travel expense, is not permissible in the opinion of Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom.

This opinion was given out here today in reply to an inquiry received from State's Attorney Neil Kerr of Livingston county. The coroner of that county, Mr. Kerr had said, received no salary nor travel expenses and depended entirely upon his fees for street address. "Red" and now as a result of the inquiry, consequently he sustained loss of time and money when conducting an inquest in a far corner of the county, and sought to remedy the situation by ordering the body brought to the county seat for inquest.

Minimum Wage of $1.80 for Govt. Workers Asked

Washington, June 3—(AP)—A bill proposing a minimum wage of $1.80 a year for federal employees has been drafted by Representative Berger of Wisconsin, who in a statement today asserted that a number of employees receive only $1.85 a month. "Congress has been very generous," he said.

IF YOU HAVE AN ACHE OR PAIN

LET THIS EXPERT HELP YOU

For Twenty Years He's Been Relieving Lamé Backs, Sore Stiff Muscles, Swollen Joints, Sprained, Achy Feet, Rheumatic Pains and Kindred Ills of Big League Athletes.

HE LOOKS AFTER WALTER JOHNSON, COVELESKI AND OTHERS OF THE WASHINGTON BASEBALL TEAM

Greatest Expert Living on Keeping Athletes in Perfect Condition.

TRY HIS METHOD ON YOUR ACHE OR PAINS

We want to introduce the reader to Mike Martin, who probably knows more about keeping a person in fighting condition than anyone else living.

For twenty years at various Universities and with the New York "Yankees," Cincinnati "Reds" and now as trainer of the Washington ball club, Mike Martin has won fame as a lightning quick fixer of sprains, pains, aches, etc., etc.

Mike Martin is a genius—he can take men claimed to be too old, stiff or rheumatic to play baseball at all and make them as frisky vigorous, supple and quick as a boy. Mike Martin knows his business—Ask Walter Johnson, Coveleski, Ty Cobb, George Sieler, or any of the big stars. They know.

HE CAN HELP YOU.

Mike Martin has a little folder or prints telling how he quickly banishes stiff, swollen joints, achy lame backs or feet, various rheumatic pains, etc. He has arranged with leading druggists here in town to sell you generous size bottles of the Liniment they use at the ball park. He has made it a long time for his own use—Athletes on other teams kept Mike busy making him "Mike Martin's Liniment"—Trainers, Coaches, College, Big League Teams all over the country buy it by the gallon from Mike. Now—Mike Martin—swamped with demand for this Liniment and directions on how to use it—has arranged with the Dixon Champion Washington Ball Club, to distribute it and they are supplying the druggists—Mike still superintends the making of it—during odd hours between acting as trainer of the 1924 and 1925 American League Champion Washington Ball Club.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST. If your druggist hasn't secured a few bottles of Mike Martin's Liniment ask him to get it. There is no other Liniment like it. It works like greased lightning even in cases of chronic lameness, swelling, stiffness or pains, yet it so mild it can be used

ERNEST LYNN, author of THE YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN and FAY MILBURN, to whom a baby girl has just been born, buy a home of their own, when the advertising agency, in which John is a partner and copy writer, lands an important new contract.

Previous chapters told how John, while Fay was in the hospital, met NELL ORME and was attracted by her beauty and puzzled when PAT FORBES, his host, told him Nell was having trouble with her husband, Forbes, who has a wife and three children, hints to John that he is dissatisfied with his own marriage.

DR. DICK MENEFE, John's best friend, gets married to MARGARET WAYNE, and John is best man. During the ceremony he drops the ring and suffers much embarrassment as well as the silent contempt of CLIFTON LANE, who has recently eloped with Margaret's sister, CLARA.

John has a dispute with NATHANIEL GRAHAM, his partner, about a salary raise for their artist, and, deciding to work that evening, he encounters an ELEANOR MASON, an acquaintance, and takes her to dinner. The next evening Fay asks him why he hadn't told her about talking dinner with another woman.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XVII

JOHN answered her hotly: "I certainly had no reason to conceal it from you."

"Then why didn't you tell me?" Fay asked. "You said nothing about it last night when you came home. Who was it you were with? I hear she was very good looking."

"It was Eleanor Mason, if you want to know," he retorted angrily. "Where did you get your information?"

She ignored his question, but seemed to freeze up at the mention of Eleanor Mason's name. "Oh, no wonder you were so secretive," she said. "I understand now."

John sprang from his chair and stood over her. "Understand what?" he demanded. "Why should I be any more secretive about eating with Eleanor Mason than anyone else? Honestly, Fay," he went on, lifting his hands and letting them fall, "I don't know what gets into you that makes you talk like that. Can't you understand that if I didn't say anything about eating with Eleanor Mason it was only because it was such an unimportant incident that it slipped my mind? Can't you understand that?"

"No, I can't," she looked away from him.

"Listen, Fay. I went out to dinner last night, first asking Nat Graham if he would go with me. Nat said he wasn't hungry yet, so I went out alone. While I was walking along the street Eleanor Mason spoke to me and asked me why I wasn't on my way home. I told her, and she suggested that we eat together. That's all there was to it—absolutely."

"Well, it's funny," said Fay, "that it had to be Eleanor Mason that you met by accident."

"That's because you don't like her. You don't like her, and that's the reason I suppose you think I ought to tell her if I see her on the street."

"I didn't say I didn't like her."

"Well, you disapproved of her at the housewarming, and accused me of acting up with her."

"I think she's too forward. She had a lot of nerve suggesting that he said, "with the special privileges it has conferred upon the rich, especially as to reducing the taxes in the highest brackets, but nigardly toward those whose labor enables the government to function from day to day."

and she sat together. She knows you're married."

"For heaven's sake, Fay, does that mean that, just because I'm married, no single woman can speak to me?"

"Well," said Fay, hesitatingly, "Mrs. Blodgett said you seemed to be mighty interested in each other."

"Mrs. Blodgett, eh? I might have known. So she was your informant, eh? Now I remember—I thought there was something familiar about those skinny shoulders I saw eating out of the dining room. They belonged to Old Man Blodgett."

He began walking back and forth. Fay said, "That's all very well, but just the same you never have told me if it hadn't been for Mrs. Blodgett."

He stopped and turned to face her. "If there were only a few more Mrs. Blodgetts I wouldn't have to tell you anything. They'd beat me to it. A few more of 'em and there wouldn't be a secret left in the world. Lord, how I love her! I'd like to strangle her!"

It was an hour or more before he could change the subject. Fay wanted to know what he and Eleanor had talked about and whether he didn't feel selfish "out eating with other women, while I'm here alone with the baby."

But finally there was peace.

Weeks followed—of uneventfulness and lots of work. There were occasions when John ate dinner downtown, but always alone or with Nat Graham.

Thanksgiving was rapidly approaching. A week before the holiday Fay suggested to John that he invite Nat Graham for Thanksgiving dinner.

"He's all alone here, you know. I think we should, don't you?"

"Yes," John agreed, "I guess we should."

Nat came, and John carved turkey with a flourish and tried vainly to press a glass of wine on Graham, and Nat was so mechanical and so "correct" in his admiration of Judith that Fay almost exploded as soon as he had left.

"What is it about him I dislike so?" she asked John, and he answered reprovingly, "You shouldn't dislike him, dear. I admit he's peculiar, but I manage to get along with him all right."

"He was just like a stick with judith. Seemed to be afraid she was going to bite him."

"Oh, well, dear, Nat tries to be human. Give him credit for trying."

"I can't help it. Just here lately I've grown to dislike him, somehow."

John didn't answer her. Instead, he walked over to Judith's crib and started playing with her. He held out his fingers, and she gripped them tightly, and tried to convey them to her mouth.

"I think she's starting to cut her teeth, Fay," he said, looking up. "She tries to put everything she gets hold of in her mouth."

"I think she is, too," Fay agreed, and John remained where he was for nearly half an hour, entirely captivated by Judith's manner of puckering up her lips before she laughed, and patiently trying to teach her to say "daddy."

The regular postman arrived a little later with the last pre-Christmas delivery. John handed him an envelope containing a crisp bill and felt a little warmed at the man's grateful "Merry Christmas."

There were scores of Christmas cards and many presents from home, most of them clothes for Judith.

Fat and Marian Forbes sent a warming plate, and Dick and Margaret a silk bonnet which sent Fay into raptures. There was a handsome card from the Clifton Lanes.

They spent the evening opening packages and decorating the tree. "Goodness," exclaimed Fay, "you brought enough decorations for a tree three times as large."

"Well, they'll keep," he grinned. "Besides, if Judith gets her hands on any of those pretty balls it will be all up with them."

"I wonder what Judith will think when she sees the tree?" said Fay, and her fingers fitted skillfully over the branches as she added the finishing touches.

John was silent. He stood off for a moment or two and surveyed the tree, and then he dropped into his favorite chair. Recollections of boyhood Christmases stirred him sadly as reminders of a departed happiness.

Fay seemed to understand his thoughts. She moved silently over beside him and placed her arm around his shoulders.

vera, had found anything in him to interest her. . . .
Fay stirred, and put down her sewing. "Goodness, John, I was just thinking, Christmas will be here before we know it."

"Yeah," John, without moving, continued to stare into the fire. Christmas was almost on them, it was true. Christmas, with its vista of loneliness for both of them. Fay said nothing more for a long time, and John knew that she was thinking of what a lonely time they had had of it the Christmas before, their first away from home and family.

Fay had said, "With Judith here, it will be different this year. Christmas is for the children, anyway." But he knew she had only been smiling to keep her courage up.

He pushed a log with his foot, and it sent up a little flurry of sparks. "The careful of the rug, dear," warned Fay. "Maybe you'd better put the screen in front of the fire."

Mechanically he rose and put the protective screen in place. "Got anything to eat?" he asked. "I'm hungry."

Fay rose. "I've got some cake left, and I can make some coffee."

"Good." He sank back in his chair. He was thinking, as she moved out of the room, of their last Christmas—the day spent in lonely exile and the knowledge that all their friends were having family reunions. It had been Fay that counseled against their going home to Washington because they would need their money for Judith's coming.

Fay returned presently with coffee and cake, and they discussed presents and the mailing of cards. The fire blazed merrily, but the house seemed strangely silent just the same.

Christmas Eve came, and John returned early from downtown, bearing a tree—the smallest he could find—and an overabundance of tinsel and colored balls.

Fay moved swiftly and busily through the house, pausing now and then to talk with Judith and to ask her if she realized it was Christmas.

"Never mind," she said, "next year you'll know what it's all about, won't she, John?"

"I hope so," he answered, and picked Judith up in his arms.

The doorknob rang, and the special delivery messenger placed a package in Fay's hands.

Fay opened it and exclaimed loudly. It was an immense fruit cake from John's mother.

"Guess that and a little wine to go with it will hit the spot tomorrow—what?" said John.

RE-DISCOVERING ILLINOIS

By LESTER B. CROSBY

Illinois Chamber of Commerce

You may think of Elgin as the original Big Butter and Egg man. But evolution is on the march in Elgin as it is in other places. Elgin no longer sets the nation's market for the fruit of hen and cow. Gone, those days. But there are other things in Elgin.

We find there a new $12,000,000 development just starting which is to be called the City of Childhood. We find windmills going out to customers beyond the Andes and in the war torn Riff.

And in Elgin we find scientists bending over their instruments measuring Star Time! Their clocks are always hermetically sealed, always kept at 81 degrees Fahrenheit, regulated by air pressure! And these men measuring Star Time in order that the clocks of the earth may tell the exact truth, inform me that the reliable old Earth rolls on so precisely that time on it will not vary a hundredth part of a second in a thousand years when measured by the stars!

Amazing things we find among the industries of Illinois—

Scales so delicate that they will weigh a pencil mark on a piece of tissue paper half the size of a dime! Marvels of mechanical nicety in this city on the Fox river just west of Chicago's rim. I have been in Elgin. I have wandered through the plant of the Elgin National Watch Company there—and I have seen strange and inspiring things.

Imagine gold screws so fine that they look like gold dust; 20,000 of them to fill a thimble! Imagine steel screws so small that a pile of them scattered about appear like pepper—yet each one threaded, a slot in each head so that they can be screwed in.

A row of girls sit turning these gold screws into balance wheels. My guide remarks:

"That's a job no man has ever been able to hold. You or I couldn't get a crew in place in fifteen minutes. But that girl will put in 4,000 in eight hours."

Poising the balance wheel, I learn, is a delicate job. The rim of it is of brass, welded on steel. Why not all one metal? The two metals to pull against each other and overcome expansion. In testing the balance wheel it is twisted on jewels. If it does not stop dead one or two of these minute, dustlike screws will be removed and others substituted until it does. In the smaller watches a hundred, of these screws, side by side, will make an inch. Each is threaded, 360 threads to the inch.

This Illinois plant, the greatest watch factory in the world, is amazingly equipped with automatic machinery. Two men running fourteen machines drill 125,000 holes in a day in one department. One man, who cuts 1,100 different kinds of "blanks", makes 70,000,000 a year.

Jewels of sapphire, garnet and ruby are cut so thin that 333 of them make only an inch. Holes are "lapped" through them with filaments dusted with diamond powder. These metal threads, almost like bits of spider web, swirl at the rate of 36,000 revolutions a minute! I was shown a two-ounce bottle and told that he held $1,200 worth of diamond powder.

We paused at another mysterious machine, working behind panels of glass, and my guide revealed that it was handing as many tools as 142 men would work with in the old, old days of hand-made things. Only this machine worked with much greater speed and with far more accuracy!

"But it is not going at capacity now", my guide apologized. "When it does it operates 184 drills and twenty taps. No workman could ever handle more than one tool at a time."

It comes as somewhat of a surprise to learn that the process of making a watch from raw materials requires about a year. Yet so steady is the flow of materials through the Elgin plant that the 4,500 persons employed turn out just about 4,500 watches every working day.

I've always presumed that it must be something of an annoying job to polish the hands of a wrist watch such as a lady must wear today to be in step and style. Easy. Dust a shower of them into a piece of leather. Bam-m-m, with a mechanical hammer. Polish them all at one swift operation and, bam—out again!

It's a clever bit of a machine that ports the microscopic jewels that go into the watches automatically. They go into a magazine and each fragility thin and smooth-polished, must be put there right side up. The machine that does it works with speed but in finite cars.

And how big would you guess the cross-section of a hair-spring might be? I am told that it is 21,000ths of an inch one way and 41,000ths of an inch the other. Operations in watch-making measure down to 1-10,000ths of an inch.

But all cannot be automatic. Otherwise why the 4,500 workers? Human skill plays a large part and an ever-present part. The head of a department said:

"Sometimes when an old employee dies or leaves it is necessary to put on as many as four persons to do his work—for the flow through the plant cannot stop. The accuracy in minute things acquired by constantly doing the same thing over and over again is startling. One woman placed 4,000 pivots, a delicate operation, so accurately that only 200 of them varied more than 2-10,000th of an inch."

Here let me give you two watch facts, from experts to me to you: The fellow who started the story that you mustn't turn a watch backward in setting it didn't know what he was talking about. It is all bunk unless the watch strikes.

Wind your watch in the morning rather than at night. You rise more regularly than you go to bed and the main spring will stand the jars of the day better if partly wound.

Let us turn to windmills. The Elgin Windmill company has been making windmills and nothing but windmills for forty years. Bert H. Yarwood, secretary, a reformed newspaper reporter, says:

Foremost Americans and Crown Prince

An unusual grouping of first magnitude celebrities here is shown at the exercises of unveiling the John Ericsson memorial in Washington. Chief Justice Taft is standing at the left. Seated then in order are Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, President Coolidge, Mrs. Coolidge and the Crown Princess Louise. What the Crown Prince said when he leaned over to address the President the camera did not record. This photograph is the first taken in America in which the Crown Prince appears in his royal plumes and medals.

"Last week a carload of our windmills went to the Riflian war front via Tunis, Algeria. A half carload went to LaPallice, France. Another half carload is this week crossing the Andes from Mollendo, Peru, to La Paz, capital of Bolivia. From Cape Town to Shantung you'll find Elgin windmills—wherever there are better farms."

Bert wanted to tell me all about how his windmills are dustless, squeakless, vaneless, running in oil—these exporters are quick with publicity in sight.

Elgin has many other things. It is the center of one of the largest religious publishing businesses in the world. Sunday School papers, etc. It is a city of beautiful parks and good homes. It has first class retail stores. It claims a trading community of 75,000 people. It has a thread-making industry. It makes watch-cases. A new company has just been formed to manufacture automobile clocks. The old butter-and-egg era has left an heirloom in the form of a butter tub factory. Elgin has many other things but I want to mention the City of Childhood.

Here on a beautiful 600 acres with a mile and a quarter of frontage on the Fox river the Brotherhood of American Yeomen is building a plant for growing the orphaned children of their members. A. N. Farmer, superintendent, said to me:

"We investigated 800 locations in thirty-eight states before we chose this place."

He said many factors entered into the choice, among them being climate, soil, general conditions, prospect for work and future as the children grow up. And the women today, probably, sit dipping snuff by the side of the road, never knowing how much their snuff dipping has cost their community."

I try to be careful about facts. I called Rodney Brandon of Mooseheart and asked him about the story of the three women dipping snuff and he said:

"Yes, there were three of them."

(This is the fifty-seventh of a series of articles written for the Illinois Chamber of Commerce entitled "Re-discovering Illinois." Their purpose is to benefit, build and develop Illinois as a whole. The next will be published soon.)

saw, sitting by the side of the road, three women dipping snuff.

"The committee turned around and went back. It was agreed unanimously that they would not build the $10,000,000 home in a place where the children would see women dipping snuff. An so three women, dipping snuff by the side of the road, cost a community a $10,000,000 development. And the women today, probably, sit dipping snuff by the side of the road, never knowing how much their snuff dipping has cost their community."

LEE CENTER NEWS

Lee Center—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leonard and daughter Helen motored here from Chicago Sunday and visited at the S. L. Shaw home.

Mrs. A. L. Stewart of Franklin Grove attended the graduating exercises here Monday night.

F. L. John has sold his garage business and equipment to John Seltz and will give possession June 15. William Seltz, who took a course in the Sweeney Auto School at Kansas City will conduct the business for his father.

Supt. and Mrs. H. P. Hilbish, Helen and Paul of Erie departed this week for Washington, D. C., where the former will take a summer's course in the George Washington University. His father Rev. P. H. Hilbish is pastor of a Lutheran church there.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Lawrence returned to their home in Elkhart, Ind., Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller of Rockford, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Flannery and infant daughter of Chicago were guests at the A. J. Carlson home Memorial Day.

Supt. and Mrs. Paul Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. George King and daughter

Carol of Amboy departed Tuesday night on a motor trip to Central City, Neb., where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. F. N. King.

Helen and Alta Grace Carlson motored to Rockford Thursday and will be the guests of their sister, Mrs. Frank Miller.

The nine seniors graduating last Monday night were: Bernice Conlbear, Edwin Daw, Ruth Hasselberg, Howard Quilston, Roy Schnell, Edwin Seltz, Eleanor Shaw, Evelyn Vivian and Harold Willis. The motto of the class is "Build for Character, Not for Fame." Colors, old rose and gold; class flower, pink rose. The ten who finished the eighth grade, are Eda Nelson, John Seltz, Faith Dishong, Carl Haack, Sherman Shaw, Gilbert Conlbear, James Vivian, Floyd Lyman, Rodney Willis, Herbert Conlbear. Dr. E. C. Lundgren of Dixon gave a wonderfully helpful address. The audience was enchanted with the singing of Prin. Benjamin Kietzman, also of Dixon and Co. Supt. L. W. Miller presented the diplomas in his usual faultless manner.

Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Westlake motored here from Sycamore Tuesday morning and their daughter Beatrice, principal of the high school, accompanied them home.

Mrs. Philip Flach and daughter Philippa of Amboy spent the week end at the Mrs. Mary M. Richardson home.

RE-DISCOVERING ILLINOIS

By LESTER B. CROSBY

Illinois Chamber of Commerce

You may think of Elgin as the original Big Butter and Egg man. But evolution is on the march in Elgin as it is in other places. Elgin no longer sets the nation's market for the fruit of hen and cow. Gone, those days. But there are other things in Elgin.

We find there a new $12,000,000 development just starting which is to be called the City of Childhood. We find windmills going out to customers between the Andes and in the war torn Rift.

And in Elgin we find scientists bending over their instruments, measuring Star Time! Their clocks are always hermetically sealed, always kept at 81 degrees Fahrenheit, regulated by air pressure! And these men measuring Star Time in order that the clocks of the earth may tell the exact truth, inform me that the reliable old Earth rolls on so precisely that time on it will not vary a hundredth part of a second in a thousand years when measured by the stars!

Amazing things we find among the industries of Illinois—

Scales so delicate that they will weigh a pencil mark on a piece of tissue paper half the size of a dime! Marvels of mechanical nicety in this city on the Fox river just west of Chicago's rim. I have been in Elgin. I have wandered through the plant of the Elgin National Watch Company there—and I have seen strange and inspiring things.

Imagine gold screws so fine that they look like gold dust; 20,000 of them to fill a thimble! Imagine steel screws so small that a pile of them scattered about appear like pepper—yet each one threaded, a slot in each head so that they can be screwed in.

A row of girls sit turning these gold screws into balance wheels. My guide remarks:

"That's a job no man has ever been able to hold. You or I couldn't get a crew in place in fifteen minutes. But that girl will put in 4,000 in eight hours."

Poising the balance wheel, I learn, is a delicate job. The rim of it is of brass, welded on steel. Why not all one metal? The two metals to pull against each other and overcome expansion. In testing the balance wheel it is twisted on jewels. If it does not stop dead on or two of these minute, dustlike screws will be removed and others substituted until it does. In the smaller watches a hundred, of these screws, side by side, will make an inch. Each is threaded, 360 threads to the inch.

This Illinois plant, the greatest watch factory in the world, is amazingly equipped with automatic machinery. Two men running fourteen machines drill 125,000 holes in a day in one department. One man, who cuts 1,100 different kinds of "blanks", makes 70,000,000 a year.

Jewels of sapphire, garnet and ruby are cut so thin that 333 of them make only an inch. Holes are "lapped" through them with filaments dusted with diamond powder. These metal threads, almost like bits of spider web, swirl at the rate of 36,000 revolutions

a minute! I was shown a two-ounce bottle and told that he held $1,200 worth of diamond powder.

We paused at another mysterious machine, working behind panels of glass, and my guide revealed that it was handling as many tools as 142 men would work with in the old, old days of hand-made things. Only this machine worked with much greater speed and with far more accuracy!

"But it is not going at capacity now," my guide apologized. "When it does it operates 184 drills and twenty taps. No workman could ever handle more than one tool at a time."

It comes as somewhat of a surprise to learn that the process of making a watch from raw materials requires about a year. Yet so steady is the flow of materials through the Elgin plant that the 4,500 persons employed turn out just about 4,500 watches every working day.

I've always presumed that it must be something of an annoying job to polish the hands of a wrist watch such as a lady must wear today to be in step and style. Easy. Dust a shower of them into a piece of leather. Ham-m-m, with a mechanical hammer. Polish them all at one swift operation and, bam—out again!

It's a clever bit of a machine that sorts the microscopic jewels that go into the watches automatically. They go into a magazine and such fragile, thin and smooth-polished, must be put there right side up. The machine that does it works with speed but infinite care.

And how big would you guess the cross-section of a hairspring might be? I am told that it is 21,000ths of an inch one way and 41,000ths of an inch the other. Operations in watch-making measure down to 1-10,000ths of an inch.

But all cannot be automatic. Otherwise why the 4,500 workers? Human skill plays a large part and an ever-present part. The head of a department said:

"Sometimes when an old employee dies or leaves it is necessary to put on as many as four persons to do his work—for the flow through the plant cannot stop. The accuracy in minute things acquired by constantly doing the same thing over and over again is startling. One woman placed 4,000 pivots, a delicate operation, so accurately that only 200 of them varied more than 2-10,000th of an inch."

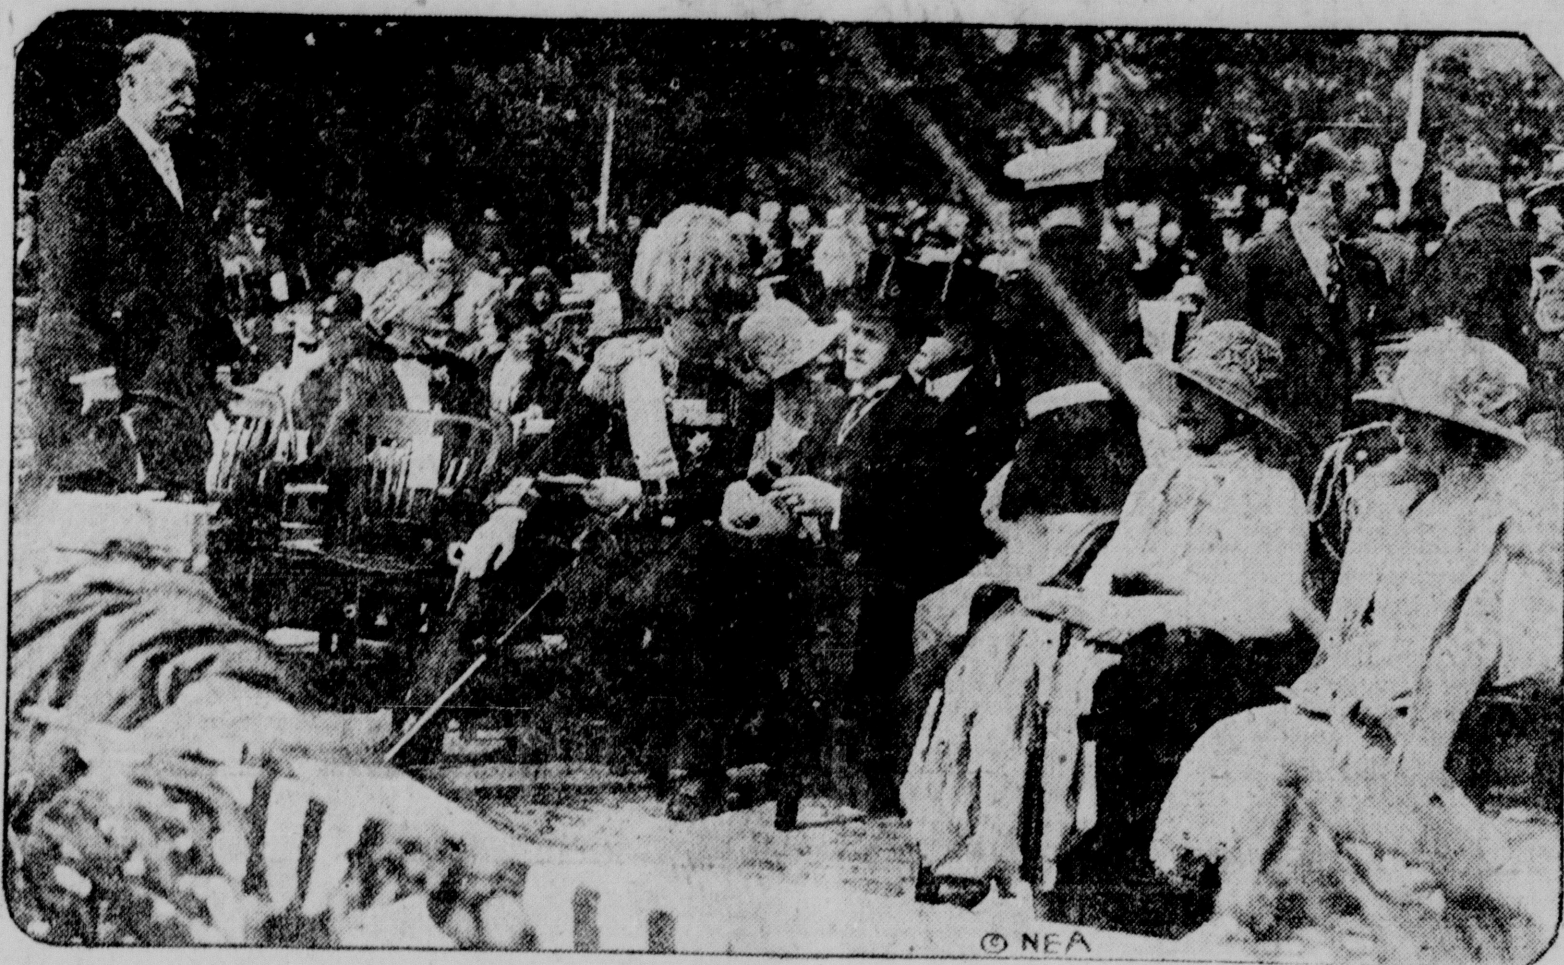

Here let me give you two watch facts, from experts to me to you:

The fellow who started the story that you mustn't turn a watch backward in setting it didn't know what he was talking about. It is all bunk unless the watch strikes.

Wind your watch in the morning rather than at night. You rise more regularly than you go to bed and the main spring will stand the jars of the day better if partly wound.

Let us turn to windmills. The Elgin Windmill company has been making windmills and nothing but windmills for forty years. Bert H. Yarwood, secretary, a reformed newspaper reporter, says:

Foremost Americans and Crown Prince

An unusual grouping of first magnitude celebrities here is shown at the exercises of unveiling the John Ericsson memorial in Washington. Chief Justice Taft is standing at the left. Seated then in order are Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden, President Coolidge, Mrs. Coolidge and the Crown Princess Louise. What the Crown Prince said when he leaned over to address the President the camera did not record. This photograph is the first taken in America in which the Crown Prince appears in his regal plumes and medals.

"Last week a carload of our windmills went to the Rifian war front via Tunis, Algeria. A half carload went to LaPallice, France. Another half carload is this week crossing the Andes from Mollendo, Peru, to La Paz, capital of Bolivia. From Cape Town to Shantung you'll find Elgin windmills—wherever there are better farms."

Bert wanted to tell me all about how his windmills are dustless, squeakless, vaneless, running in oil—these ex-reporters are quick with publicity in sight.

Elgin has many other things. It is the center of one of the largest religious publishing businesses in the world. Sunday School papers, etc. It is a city of beautiful parks and good homes. It has first class retail stores. It claims a trading community of 75,000 people. It has a thread-making industry. It makes watch-cases. A new company has just been formed to manufacture automobile clocks. The old butter-and-egg era has left an heirloom in the form of a butter tub factory. Elgin has many other things but I want to mention the City of Childhood.

Here on a beautiful 600 acres with a mile and a quarter of frontage on the Fox river the Brotherhood of American Yoemen is building a plant for growing the orphaned children of their members. A. N. Farmer, superintendent, said to me:

"We investigated 800 locations in thirty-eight states before we chose this place."

He said many factors entered into the choice, among them being climate, soil, general conditions, prospect for work and future as the children grow but most of all and foremost—the sort of people among whom the children will live in coming years. He said that nowhere in the thirty-eight states did he find the intelligence of the people and the standards of living better.

And he told me a story of Mooseheart. The home of the Yoemen, north of Elgin, means a $12,000,000 investment. The home of the Moose, at Mooseheart, is perhaps $10,000,000 and will grow. This is the story that interested me much for I am seeking stories of why cities grow or why they don't.

"The Moose, before us," said Mr. Farmer, "searched the nation over for an ideal site for their school and home for children. They were pretty well sold on a site down on the Ohio river. In fact, the deal was so nearly completed that the committee was taken to the site. As the cavalcade of motor cars swept by the committee saw, sitting by the side of the road, three women dipping snuff.

"The committee turned around and went back. It was agreed unanimously that they would not build the $10,000,000 home in a place where the children would see women dipping snuff. An so three women, dipping snuff by the side of the road, cost a community a $10,000,000 development. And the women today, probably, sit dipping snuff by the side of the road, never knowing how much their snuff-dipping has cost their community."

I try to be careful about facts. I called Rodney Brandon of Mooseheart and asked him about the story of the three women dipping snuff and he said:

"Yes, there were three of them."
